A videographic journey through water's intimate relationship with our planet. It explores different ways water shapes our world and how we humans relate to it. The film is an artistic documentary that has no dialogue or voice over. The story is told through beautiful imagery, sounds and music that transports the viewer through different locations and water related activities. Production's goal is to bring viewers on a journey through water's different cycles and habitats that highlight the grandeur of Canada's water heritage.
