

Dans l'antichambre des professionnels

DOCUSERIES

Can a hockey league train skilled players who will also be balanced young men? How can a hockey league reconcile the requirements of sports and academic policies, while fulfilling its responsibilities regarding the proper supervision of the young people entrusted into its care?

The documentary series Dans l'antichambre des professionnels is:

- A critical and rigorous look at the Junior/Senior hockey industry.
- A behind the scenes look at these organizations entrusted with training and preparing our future sports heroes.
- An analysis that questions the comparative efficiency of different North-American Junior/Senior hockey leagues.
- A series of troubling revelations that might positively influence this sport, the training of its young athletes, and their flourishing into maturity.
