In August 1944, after the Allies' breakthrough in Normandy, General Montgomery's bold plan aimed to end the war by Christmas. The strategy involved capturing rivers and roads in Holland to push into Germany's industrial heartland. This documentary follows the heroic efforts of paratroopers, tankers, and infantry as they race 60 miles through Belgium to Arnhem, recreating key battles with hundreds of period vehicles and thousands of participants, commemorating the bravery that shaped the war's outcome.
