After D-Day's triumph, the Allies faced 80 days of relentless combat, battling entrenched German forces across Normandy's hedgerows, villages, and towns. The underestimated terrain and fierce resistance led to staggering casualties, surpassing Omaha Beach daily. With overwhelming air and artillery strikes, devastation spread to soldiers and civilians alike. This documentary uncovers the sacrifice, strategy, and heroism that shaped the brutal fight for Europe's liberation, honoring those who gave everything for freedom.
