Our springs used to live in a mattress wandering in space and were thrown on Earth during the “Big Bouiing”. In their own way, according to their personality and interests, they discovered the world on which they bounced.

In each one of our vignettes, we see them dwelling on an object, a place, a situation or people, but always in a unique and different way. Our stories are short, funny and without words.

At the problem-solving level, divergent thinking shows us different aspects, leads us on original avenues of resolution on which concrete (convergent) thinking would not lead us. It is also what we routinely call “thinking outside the box” and this is the main way towards fluid, flexible and creative thinking.
